TOTAL POPULATION, INCREASE, AND DISTRIBUTION.

Population of the state.—The greater part of the area now constituting Louisiana—that part lying west of the Mississippi River—was organized in 1804 as the territory of Orleans, and in April, 1812, it was admitted to the Union as the eighteenth state, under the name of Louisiana. At that time the Baton Rouge district was not included in the new state, but it was added very shortly thereafter, thus giving Louisiana its present extent. According to the Fourteenth Census, taken as of January 1, 1920, the population of the state is 1,798,509, which represents an increase of 142,121, or 8.6 per cent, since 1910. During the same period the population of the United States increased by 14.9 per cent.

The following summary shows the population of Louisiana from 1810 to 1920, inclusive, together with the number and per cent of increase for each decade, in comparison with the per cent of increase for the United States as a whole:

Parishes.—Louisiana has 64 parishes, 4 of which—Allen, Beauregard, Evangeline, and Jefferson Davis—have been organized from parts of 2 others since 1910. Of the 58 parishes whose boundaries have remained unchanged, 31 show increases and 27 decreases as compared with 1910. (See Table 1.) Because of the territorial changes resulting from the organization of the 4 parishes named, it has been necessary, in preparing the maps on page 3, showing rates of increase or decrease in total and rural population, to combine Allen, Beauregard, Calcasieu, and Jefferson Davis Parishes, and to combine Evangeline and St. Landry Parishes.

Density of population.—The total land area of the state is 45,409 square miles. The average number of inhabitants to the square mile in 1920 is 39.6 (see Table 1), as against 36.5 in 1910 and 30.4 in 1900.

POPULATION—LOUISIANA.

Minor civil divisions.—The political units into which the parishes of Louisiana (or counties in other states) are divided are collectively termed "minor civil divisions." The Louisiana parishes are made up of 508 primary divisions, comprising 507 police jury wards and the city of New Orleans, which is coextensive with Orleans Parish. The secondary divisions are 202 in number, comprising 16 cities, 114 towns, and 72 villages. One town—Donaldsonville, in Ascension Parish—is coextensive with the police jury ward in which it is located; and each of four cities, four towns, and four villages comprises parts of two or more wards. (See Table 2.)

Cities.—Louisiana has 16 cities, of which New Orleans, with a population of 387,219, is the largest. (See Tables 3 and 4.) The following summary shows, for each city having 10,000 or more inhabitants in 1920, the population at each census for which figures are available, together with the number and per cent of increase during the preceding decade:

Urban and rural population.—The Census Bureau defines urban population as that residing in cities and other incorporated places having 2,500 inhabitants or more, and rural population as that residing outside such incorporated places.

The following summary presents, for the last three censuses, figures showing the urban and rural population of the state distributed among places grouped according to specified limits of population. The classification for each census is based upon the population of the various places as shown by the returns of that census. Consequently the territory comprised within any one class of cities or that designated as urban or as rural does not remain fixed, because any given place may, through the growth or the decline of its population, pass from one class to another at successive censuses. The proportion of the population of Louisiana living in places of 2,500 or more increased from 26.5 per cent in 1900 to 30 per cent in 1910 and to 34.9 per cent in 1920.
